

Hegel and the Circle of Sciences

III German-Latin American Congress on Hegel's Philosophy

Commemorating the 250th Anniversary of the Birth of Hegel

31 October - 4 November 2022
Lima and Cusco, PERU

CALL FOR PAPERS

The commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the birth of Hegel provides an ideal opportunity to discuss Hegel's groundbreaking interpretation of the meaning, task, and systematic structure of philosophy. The event will focus on philosophy's relationship with other forms of human knowledge, especially with those considered scientific endeavours. Hegel famously claimed that philosophy should no longer be "love of wisdom", but rather become "real knowledge" or "science". According to the dialectic of thought-categories and of particular scientific methods, the entirety of knowledge ought to develop into a "circle of circles", centred on philosophy and philosophical sciences, but also open to dialogue with other disciplines.

The III German-Latin American Congress on Hegel's Philosophy aims to debate the current relevance of Hegel's project. Hegel's thought resonates nowadays not only in many fields of philosophy, but also within the ongoing epistemological debates of other sciences: in the awareness of the historicity of thought, in the social dimension of rationality, in our understanding of the history of art or the history of philosophy, in the critique of the principles of modernity, or in the foundations of a postmodern age.

The Congress is organized by the German-Latin American Research and Doctoral Network in Philosophy (FILORED). We invite the international philosophical community to participate and submit proposals in one of the three official languages: German, Spanish and Portuguese. We will exceptionally accept papers in English, French, or Italian.

We also inform that in the week following our congress two other meetings on Hegel's philosophy will take place in Latin America: the I International Congress of the Ibero-American Society of Hegelian Studies (SEH), from November 7 to 9, in Santiago de Chile (contacto@estudioshegelianos.cl) and the VIII International Symposium on German Classical Philosophy, on November 10 and 11, in Buenos Aires (Contact person Héctor Ferreiro: ferreiro_hector@hotmail.com).

Themes and Sections:

- I. Hegel and philosophical knowledge
- II. Hegel and the science of logic
- III. Hegel and the history of philosophy
- IV. Hegel in the context of classical German philosophy
- V. Hegel and the natural sciences
- VI. Hegel and the human sciences
- VII. Hegel and law
- VIII. Hegel and the philosophy of history
- IX. Hegel and art
- X. Hegel and religion
- XI. Hegel and the plurality of knowledge and its forms
- XII. Hegel and his critics

Conditions for the submission of papers:

1. The email with the proposal must include the following information: (a) first and last names, and academic degree, (b) title of the paper, and the name of the section in which it would be presented, (c) academic affiliation and contact information, (d) curriculum vitae (200-300 words), (e) indication of whether the speaker will participate in both venues (Lima and Cuzco).
2. Please attach to the email a file (Word or PDF) with the title of the paper and an abstract (300-500 words). Each speaker will have 30 minutes available (20 minutes for the presentation and 10 minutes for discussion).
3. Deadline: July 1, 2022. The results of the assessment of proposals will be made public by July 31, 2022.
4. Registration fee: speakers and general audience: 150 soles (40 euros / 45 US dollars). Students: 75 soles (20 euros / 22 US dollars). Payment and registration will be carried out through the Congress' web page.
5. Please send your proposal to the following address: hegelperu2020@pucp.edu.pe

For up to date information on the III German-Latin American Congress on Hegel's Philosophy visit:

<http://congreso.pucp.edu.pe/hegel/>

<http://cef.pucp.edu.pe/>

<https://www.fernuni-hagen.de/filored/es/index.shtml>

cef@pucp.edu.pe; fernando.moledo@fernuni-hagen.de